In South Carolina.

(Published by Request.)

Governor Evans of South Carolina has not abated one jot from his vigorous enforcement of the Dispensary Law by reason of the injunction issued by Judge Goff of the United States Circuit Court, restraining the State officials from interfering with the shipment of liquor into the State, or its storage in the original packages by the persons to whom it is shipped. On the contrary, he has appointed ten additional constables to doubly insure the seizure of liquor not intended for the dispensary. In like manner, Judge Goff's injunction restraining the election officers from holding the election for the approaching Constitutional Convention is to be openly disobeyed. The Governor says that the State officers must proceed with the enforcement of the State laws. In case the United States marshals arrest these in the discharge of their duties, a writ of habeas corpus will promptly be applied for before the United States courts, and in that way the question be settled more speedily than in any other way. The Southern press is united in condemning the order restraining the election officers as a glaring instance of the abuse of the right of the court to use the extraordinary remedy of an injunction. But the same papers are either silent concerning the injunction against the dispensary officials or positively favorable toward it. Yet this injunction, apparently, has less ju stification than the other.

Thus far the State officers have openly violated the injunction, and the officers of the Federal Court have not attempted to arrest them. The Charleston News and Courier, which is practically the organ of the State liquor interests, as well as of the conservative Democracy, confesses that the liquor men are disappo[illegible]ed at this, and hardly hope that the injunction will be made permanent. They have, therefore, brought another suit, more carefully prepared, before Judge Simonton—likewise of the United States States Circuit Court. Apparently the only hope of the South Carolina liquor interests now lies in the interference of the Federal judiciary. The dispensary system seems to be firmly established in the approval of the people of the State. Nearly all our information concerning its workings has come from hostile or critical sources; yet the hostile source—the columns of the News and Courier—has given increasing evidence that the law against private dram-shops is rigidly enforced throughout the State; while the critical source—the testimony of the correspondents of the Voice—has from the first declared the law a success. The following editorial paragraph from the current number of the Review of Reviews [illegible] show after a visit to Sout[illegible] to express the [illegible] impartial investigator must reach

"The people of South Carolina, outside [illegible] the old liquor interest and certain [illegible], have become almost unanimous in the opinion that the system is a splendid success. Governor Evans, when in the Legislature, was the chief promoter of the dispensary law, and now that he is in the executive chair he is quite as stanch in maintaining and enforcing the systen as was Governor Tillman. Railway roadmasters and other men familiar with conditions throughout the State are enthusiastic in their account of the good effects that the law has already produced. Drunkenness and disorder have decreased to a remarkable extent; and whereas the negro laborer was formerly accustomed to spend his week's earnings in carousing on Saturday night and Sunday, he is now spending more upon his family, or else saving his money to buy land. The ten or twelve State dispensaries in the city of Charleston, which have taken the place of scores or hundreds of saloons, are as openly conducted and as orderly as any drug-store, and are absolutely closed at sundown. The effect upon the quiet and order of the city has been too transforming to admit of any denial. Reports from country towns throughout the State are to the effect that the closing of the old bar-rooms in favor of the new dispensaries has been attended with results that have converted almost every good citizen to a belief in the present system. In view of the widely circulated reports in disparagement of the South Carolina dispensaries, these facts ought to be given a wide publicity."

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed, F. W. Miner's Theatre.

The annual reception given to Col. W. M. Morton, the esteemed manager of Miner's Newark Theatre, under the auspices of many of New Jersey's prominent citizens, and which is to occur on Wednesday evening, June 5, at the theatre, will be, beyond a doubt, the most important event socially and theatrically that has transpired the present season.

The bill of attractions being prepared for this occasion is one of stupendous magnitude, and as varied and novel as one could well wish for.

Almost all, with possibly one or two exceptions, the olio consists of artists from the most notable European vaudeville theatres, all being of the most superior character and highly entertaining.

The house decorations for the evening will be upon a grand scale of splendor; the Edison Works are to furnish the novelties, which will be grand in electric lightings; the famous decorator, Aldrich, furnishes the armorial bearings, buntings, banners etc.; Haase, the florist, supplies the tropical potted plants and flowers, and altogether the affair will be upon a scale of grandeur rarely witnessed inside a theatre.

TO THE WORLD OF WOMEN.

Weak, nervous, delicate, overworked women need a strength builder, a tonic for their nerves, and a cure for that awful internal trouble that is wearing out their lives. Thousands of women have found it in Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Mrs. Christiana Beal of Jonesport, Me., writes that her daughter had been a great sufferer from female trouble, and after repeated trials of doctor's prescriptions and other so-called cures, all of which gave no relief, she used Favorite Remedy and it permanently cured her.

If you have headache, uterine catarrh, irregular menstruation, leucorrhœa or irregular monthly periods, sickness incidental to change of life, or any of the attending evils that are present in female complaints, use Favorite Remedy; it will build up quickly the run-down constitution, dispel those tired looks and feelings, restore the nervous system, and permanently cure you. Our daughters grow up weak and delicate; mothers can avoid such conditions by giving them Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.—Advt
